CREEDEN CONFESSES

He Tells in Detail How He Paid $15,000 to Obtain His Appointment.

It Was Understood, He Says, that the Money Was for Commissioner Voorhis.

Reppenhagen, the Go-Between, Also Squeals and Implicates Ex-Assemblyman Martin.

Police Captain Creeden took the stand at the Lexow Committee's session to-day and told in detail the story of how he paid $15,000 to be appointed Captain. The money, he declared, was raised at the suggestion of John W. Reppenhagen, who told him the gift was at Commissioner Voorhis's disposal, and he (Creeden) could get it by paying $12,000.

Creeden says he went to Barney Rourke, who straightway raised a subscription on notes which the soon-to-be-Captain signed in blank.

After the $12,000 was raised, Creeden says, he was told he would have to get $3,000 more, as $15,000 had been offered by Sergt. Wiegand, of the Ninth Precinct.

The additional sum was raised, and after a talk with Commissioner Voorhis, during which he denied all knowledge of any fund having been raised, he received his appointment.

The Captain, on being called to the stand, testified as follows: Mr. Goff—You have reflected over night, Captain, on your conduct since 1888, and took the first Precinct instead of being retained in it, in court, who I supposed were friends of mine, nor did I wish to place myself in the light of an informer.

Q. Now, do you wish to state anything different from what you have said to-day? A. Yes, after consulting with my family and friends, I have decided to make a full statement of my case.

Q. You had children? A. Yes, eight. Q. How many? A. Eight. Q. How many? A. Eight. Q. How many? A. Eight.

Q. How did you pay the $15,000 in Martin's? A. By a check, which I drew on the Bowers Bank. It was a check for $15,000, and I had given him $50 already.

Q. When did you give him the $50? A. It was of an evening, after the appointment was made. Q. Was the agreement then with Martin that he should get $15,000? A. No, there was no particular agreement about that.

Q. How did you pay the $15,000 in Martin's? A. By a check, which I drew on the Bowers Bank. It was a check for $15,000, and I had given him $50 already.

LAST EDITION. MR. CROKER DECLINES

He Will Not Accept Mr. Goff's Invitation to Testify. "I Have Nothing to Vindicate," He Declares.

Creeden's $15,000 Story Arouses His Mirth.

Richard Croker was seen at his office, 111 Broadway, by an "Evening World" reporter at noon to-day, and asked if he would accept Mr. Goff's invitation to appear before the Lexow Committee and vindicate himself on the constructive charge of extortion implied by the testimony of Witness Moran yesterday.

"I don't know that he has any business to be made against me," said Mr. Croker in reply, "for that there is nothing to vindicate."

"The only thing Mr. Moran testified was that he contributed to Tammany Hall. If the Committee wants to find out about contributions to Tammany Hall, I'm sure they can find it out."

"Why don't they ask the Union League Club, the Republicans and County Democracy, about political contributions? Those organizations get them as well as Tammany Hall."

"I don't know that he has any business to be made against me," said Mr. Croker in reply, "for that there is nothing to vindicate."

Gets His Meals from a Restaurant and Reads Newspapers All Day. Ex-Captain John T. Stephenson apparently slept well in his cell in the Tombs last night, and this morning he was up early and asked for the morning papers, which were brought to him.

He read with interest all about the proceedings before the Lexow Committee yesterday, and of how Creeden had paid off and had paid for him $15,000 for his captivity, but Stephenson made no comment on the story.

His breakfast was taken to him from a nearby restaurant, where he has been getting all of his meals since he was locked up in cell No. 3 in the old "Tombs" in the Tombs. He has touched the prison fare since his incarceration.

Stephenson says that he is a very quiet prisoner, and has but little to say to the other prisoners. He has had no visitors since he was put in the Tombs. His wife has not yet been able to see him.

Stephenson spends most of his time reading the newspapers, and does not seem to be particularly interested in the proceedings before the Lexow Committee.

ARE MERCHANTS VICTIMIZED? Say So, Because They Cannot Violate the Ordinances.

Over one hundred cases of violation of corporation ordinances were on the calendar in Civil Justice Wauson's Third District Court, to-day. They were adjourned until Tuesday. Nearly all cases of merchants and storekeepers whose signs extend more than three feet over the sidewalk.

There is a rumor that about 1,500 cases are waiting to go on the docket. The cases are being brought in, in revenge for the evidence of the Lexow Committee brought out before the Lexow Committee.

HAS MARVIN SKIPPED OUT? The Green-Goods ringer Said to Have Jumped His Bail.

The police are anxious to find Eugene Marvin, a printer of green goods circulars. Marvin has been convicted and is out on $7,500 bail, furnished by Sophia A. Murtha, of 5 University place.

After Marvin's conviction he appealed and the Court of Appeals on Tuesday rendered an adverse decision. A warrant was issued for Marvin's arrest, but up to this afternoon the police have been unable to find him. He was exposed by the Lexow Committee investigation.
